Technical Note: Auto-save site configurations

To automatically record changes and backup site configurations on your laptop or workstation please use notepad to edit the `sites.ini` file found in this folder:

XP:

C:\Documents and Settings\All Users\Application Data\Teleprecision\RemoteAdmin

Win7:

C:\ProgramData\Teleprecision\RemoteAdmin

Find the `[RemoteAdminTool]` section (add it if it is not already present, but do not duplicate this section heading) then immediately below that, add:

`SaveConfigPath=<Path to your config folder>`

You should end up with something similar to these examples:

XP:

```
[RemoteAdminTool]
```

```
SaveConfigPath=C:\Documents and Settings\All Users\Application
Data\Teleprecision\RemoteAdmin\SavedConfigs
```

Win7:

```
[RemoteAdminTool]
```

```
SaveConfigPath=C:\ProgramData\Teleprecision\RemoteAdmin\SavedConfigs
```

Each time you use the Remote Admin Tool to connect to a site, a subfolder with the same name as the site will be created and a dated `.cfg` file saved. Any changes will be saved after a 'Get from site' operation is performed or on subsequent connections. Configurations can be opened in Notepad to view them but manually editing them is not advised.

To restore all or part of a saved configuration, connect to the site with the Remote Administration Tool, choose File->Open from the menu bar, navigate to your saved configuration file. For each section you wish to restore, right-click it and select the 'activate' option from the pop-up menu, a green tick will be displayed alongside the section. Click the Apply button to send the changes to the unit.
